

You've heard of WikiLeaks – a website committed to openness. Well, openness isn't always a good thing. Sometimes those sphincters should be tightly closed. David Benatar exposes a website committed to the control of leaks – WeeweeLeaks

KEEP US DRY

Help WeeWeeLeaks Keep
Sphincters closed

Main Babies Little Pishers Juju Adults Puppies Potties

“COULD BE AS IMPORTANT A PERSONAL HYGIENE TOOL AS SOAP” – SLIME MAGAZINE

WeeweeLeaks is a non-profit organization dedicated to bringing important news and information about incontinence to the public. We provide an innovative, secure and anonymous way for enuretics around the world to discuss their leaking problems. We publish material of unique urinary significance while keeping our sources anonymous, thus providing a forum for the discussion of damp secrets.

Support Us

Too Wet

WeeweeLeaks relies on its supporters in order to help people stay dry. Please keep us at the forefront of continence and support us today. You can also read more about WeeweeLeaks, our pissing mission and objectives.

Nappygate: 2 000 000 tales of parental woe 2011-02-10

On Thursday 10 February 2011, WeeweeLeaks began publishing 2 124 253 parental testimonies of nappy failure, the largest set of such documents ever to be released into the public domain. Warning: So funny, you may wet yourself reading these.

All flood releases ark-ived 2011-02-10

Due to recent precipitation attacks on our infrastructure, we've decided to make sure everyone can reach our content. As part of this process Uncle Noah has archived our flood of yellowed documents, which have been carefully uploaded two by two.

Video: War on the terror of a wetter 2011-01-15

Secret United States WMV files include previously unseen video material of that bladder nuisance, Osama Bin-Leakin'. You won't see this on U(rethra)-Tube.

H₂O-No! 2010-11-02

Water, water everywhere, and so not a drop to drink. A diatribe against diuretics. Also featuring other urological urgings.

Ladies of the night 2010-10-10

Dank tales of nocturnal enuresis from the Golden Girls.

Pissants I have known 2010-08-04

Another fountain of information.

David Benatar is a regular contributor to SAX Appeal. He sometimes moonlights as Professor of Philosophy.